7 Greatest Battles

The battle of Waterloo settled the matter and it had made all other things ridiculous.

Battle was in the recent air. We had an amazing emperor and sent him to Holland.

It would be interesting to know which are really the seven greatest battles of the world. This is my opinion. Last

TIME CHANGES SUNDAY A. M.

Prepare to enjoy an extra hour's sleep on Sunday, for that is the day when daylight saving ends and a return is made to normal sun time.

Push the hands of the clock or watch back one hour at midnight Saturday night. Better still if it is possible to go to bed earlier than the midnight hour, turn it back at bedtime—but turn it back.

A watchmaking expert has said that it does not hurt a good timepiece to push it backwards. Use your own judgment but if preferable to push the clock ahead, only push it eleven hours.

CHILDREN SAID "HA! HA!" AS PASTOR PREACHED

Lead, R. D. Sept. 24.—(A.P.)—Quitted from the Presbyterian State Synod and his pulpit here, Rev. A. H. Crombie, Fundamentalist, announced today he will build a laboratory to Fundamentalism where he will preach "The Bible as it stands, miracles and all."

Since his removal after attacks on his policy by parliamentarians, who were so far as to have the church published to prevent his use of it, the minister has enabled the old faith Presbyterian church.

The ministers are angry because of Crombie's attack on the old faith. "The children said 'ha! ha!'" they said, "they would say, you should hear what Miss Blank, our high school teacher, has to say about that." When I attempted to explain my views in refutation of the heresies, the elders blacked my way. So I am returning to Lead to fight."

NEW FERRYBOAT NOW READY FOR SERVICE

Fresh from the yard of her builders at Fore River, Quincy, the new ferryboat Charles C. Donoghue, late addition to the municipal fleet, looked at South Ferry terminal for formal delivery to the City of Boston. As the handsome craft, with blue flying, made her way up the harbor she was accorded noisy greeting by steamers, tugs and other ferries.

The Charles C. Donoghue, named in honor of a past commander of Major Gramp Spanish War Veterans, is constructed entirely of steel, and has many improvements over those already in service.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY Nahant Summer Festivities to Close with Supper Dance at Club

THE MERRY TUNE PIPED by Nahant's Summer colony comes to its final note tomorrow evening with the last supper-dance of the season, beneath the hospitable roof of the cozy little Nahant Club and attended by practically all the regulars of the colony.

MR. AND MRS. ARCHAIBALD BLANCHARD and Miss Rosemond Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. King, the David Blagovest, the Louis Bacon, Dr. and Mrs. Freeman Allen, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Blinney, Jr., the Samuel Hammond and their daughter, Miss Susan, are all lights in the social firmament.

FIFTY OR MORE Nahantians will put in an appearance for this delightfully informal supper dance, and on Saturday evening Miss Rosemond Blanchard, daughter of Mr. Archibald Blanchard, entertains at dinner.

ALTHOUGH LIFE for that sprightly debutante-to-be, Miss Margaret Wentworth, daughter of the Stratford Wentworths, is just now that of a tenderly nursed convalescent, everything points, contrary to a sure recovery in anticipation of coming out festivities.

ON OCTOBER 2, Miss Wentworth is formally presented, at a dance at the Milton Club, preceded by a dinner at which forty guests (hers and girl intimates of the budding star) at the Milton Club.

THE DANCE is strictly young set. Mrs. Wentworth continues her guest list to the large and important debutante set and the gallant cavaliers, to the number of two hundred or so, dance devoted attention to the buds.

MRS. H. HOOPER LAWRENCE is entertaining on October 20 for Miss Wentworth, giving a large luncheon, a sort of return courtesy for the affair given last year by Mrs. Wentworth when Miss Caroline Lawrence joined the buds.

THIS LUNCHEON (probably to be given at the Lawrence town house in Beacon Street) has been changed from its earlier place on the docket to October 20, but Miss Lawrence's luncheon is a later date quite imperative.

SHE COMES out after that most fascinating of all preliminaries, a European journey. For more than seven months Mrs. Wentworth and the daughters, Miss Margaret and Miss Nancy (a bud of two years ago) have been wandering in foreign climes.

ALL OVER the Continent they traveled. Two months doing Italy, a month in France, another two months jaunting through King of the Netherlands, Belgium, Holland and Belgium, wherever their fancy directed, was the Wentworth program.

OCTOBER AT THE PAINES estate in Waltham, a lovely rambling stone and wood residence commanding a wide Westward view, is the plan of those inveterate travelers and world citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treat Paine.

TAX MEN REFUSE TO 'O. K.' THOSE EXPENSE BILLS

HULTMAN HITS ANTI-CHEAP COAL MEN

The Pennsylvania coal interests and the Interstate Commerce Commission were attacked in a statement today by Eugene C. Hultman, Massachusetts Emergency Fuel Commissioner.

Commissioner Hultman made the attack in endeavoring the movement to have made permanent the temporary joint rates and through routes to New England on prepared rates of bituminous coal from the Virginia fields, which were offered by the Interstate Commerce Commission in October.

Pennsylvania is opposing this action, according to Commissioner Hultman, who said the struggle will come to a head at two hearings assigned by the commission, the first of which starts October 1.

He said the Pennsylvania interests have conducted false propaganda on a large scale and have injected every possible political question in an effort to obtain a decision in their favor. Hultman added that the people of New England have a right to supply able to compete in this market, and it is the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce this right by preventing any just and discriminatory combination rates.

ASSUMING POWER. "The Interstate Commerce Commission," he said, "is showing an increasing tendency to arrogate to itself powers never intended in the legislation creating it."

"It not only pretends to tell the trade in what channels it can or cannot flow, as well as stating that it has the right to reduce industries of the country nearer to the sources of their raw materials, if it seems fit, but proposes to tell the people of the country what part of their natural resources they shall use and to prevent competition."

BAR PARADE BY NUTMEG KLANS

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 24 (N.Y.)—Restrained by a Superior Court injunction issued by Judge John H. Roth from parading when they meet here tomorrow, alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan of eastern Connecticut today announced the injunction would have no effect on the general meeting.

Alvin J. Bannister, first sequestrator, accused the injunction on the ground that serious trouble might result from a parade.

The injunction is being served today by deputy sheriffs on leaders Kinnedy and other towns in the association.

MISS X' NABBED IN EVANGELIST MYSTERY

Los Angeles, Sept. 24 (U.N.S.)—The Los Angeles Examiner, in a copyrighted story from San Francisco, says today that the mysterious "Miss X" and "John Doe" Martin have been arrested in San Francisco in connection with the conspiracy charges against Alvin Karpis, the famous Los Angeles woman evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

Long sought in connection with the alleged attempt of Mrs. Karpis to produce a "Miss X" as the companion of Kenneth G. Thompson, former radio operator at Angeles Temple, "John Doe" Martin has been identified as Harry Melton, 25, Los Angeles, clothing salesman, and "Miss X" as Mrs. Iola Daniels, 29, of Chicago.

The pair, according to the story, have signed confessions naming Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Minnie Karpis, and her mother, a Los Angeles attorney, and a well-known Los Angeles detective as the central figures in the scheme to clear Mrs. Karpis's name.

JUDGE FREES 'GUN GIRL'

Flashin' a loaded revolver in a restaurant was a good joke, Alice J. Buttrick, eighteen, of Grandville avenue, Malden, told Judge Dowd today in Municipal Court. The judge placed her on probation for six months after lecturing her. She was arraigned on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver.

The girl, a domestic in a Brighton house, was arrested on the Common by Patrolman Robert, who said four or five persons had told him she had brandished the weapon in a Tremont street restaurant, near Boylston street.

While visiting at the office of Meyer Goldstein with a youth employed by the former, Alice testified, she just did it for a joke, she said. Goldstein, who was called as a witness, produced a license. The boy friend, about 16, told the court he knew the girl only slightly.

Mrs. Robert Buttrick, mother of the girl, was also in court and said she had never had any trouble with her daughter.

New York, Sept. 24 (U.N.S.)—Louis Cresset, Washington millionaire, his three guests and the captain of his yacht, the Advance, were picked up by the Panama Railroad Co. freighter Guayaquil Tuesday off Charlie Island after the Cresset yacht had been wrecked by the West Indian gale, according to radio reports today.

BRISK SALE FOR STORM BENEFIT

Not content with giving their services in the big benefit performance to be staged at midnight at the Metropolitan Theatre, the stars of the various shows in town also made purchases of many tickets for the affair, as another evidence of their desire to lend both theatrical and financial aid in this worthy cause.

Mrs. Nichols is to be on hand at tonight's entertainment, and it was also announced that Governor John C. Winant of New Hampshire and Governor-elect Pillsbury of the same State have made reservations.

Harry Houdini promises the committee that he will show them how to extract more donations from the millions. Though under the care of a physician, the mystifier will be on hand to do his magic for charity.

The sale of tickets has been so brisk that those who want to be present at the big benefit will have to make an early visit to any of the theatres of Boston today to procure admission.

Many new names have been added to the long list of those already scheduled to appear. Among these are Gertrude Lang, Glen Dale and Joseph J. Carron of the "Dancing Duchess" Company at the Wilbur theatre; Gladys Barker, Walter Crane and Robert Bennett Keane of "Happy Go Lucky" at the Rialto; Walter Ford, Emerson Tracy, Una Merkel, Elaine Temple, Effie Allen, William Cox, George Leader and Phil Harrison of "Pigs" at the Park theatre.

G. A. R. ELECTS WALSH CHIEF

Two Motives, Jr. Sept. 24 (A.P.)—Some of the spirit that manifested itself on the battlefield sixty years ago was recalled in the closing minutes of the G. A. R. convention here, during which Frank A. Walsh, Milwaukee, was named commander-in-chief and Dayton, Ohio, was selected as the 1927 meeting place. There was little left on today's program.

Shouts filled the air as the officers threw dignity aside in their excitement over both issues. They clambered onto chairs, waving arms and canes in an effort to gain recognition. They all wanted to take it once. Pending officers' efforts to quiet them were ignored.

John I. Clem of Washington, D. C., was reported as the most favored candidate for commander, but the speech of E. R. Van Dusen, nominating Walsh, apparently best him.

3,500 Breakfasts in a Summer Season

PINEYCREST, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude C. Hopkins, is famous in Western Michigan for its delightful hospitality. In a magazine article Mr. Hopkins describes his summer avocation as "a professional host." And he reveals in whimsical way much of the technique.

According to Mrs. Hopkins, summer entertainment begins in the winter, in the study of the tastes and whims of her prospective guests. Thus the people who come find their favorite foods and friends. Most of them find, as a personal surprise, something for which they have expressed a liking.

Hundreds of guests come from far and near. Some 3,500 breakfasts are served here in a summer. Guests find their rooms decorated with flowers to match the draperies and furnishings. Each finds a supply of every article guests have ever asked for. Those who smoke find in their rooms their favorite cigars or cigarettes.

Breakfast brings a coffee which no visitor forgets. Almost everyone asks about it. They are told that the coffee in La Touraine (Extra), the queen coffee of New England. And that it is brewed by an expert who will gladly demonstrate her process.

Pinecrest is famous in many ways for its forest setting, its water outlooks, its gorgeous gardens, its wealth of recreations. But no memory lingers longer with the guests who come there than the revelation they obtain of coffee at its best.

Interesting facts about La Touraine (Extra) Coffee

It is the largest-selling coffee in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees in America. In this home of exciting coffee, it is considered the most delicious of the morning's results of 327 years of coffee development.

It is the coffee served in many dining places famous for their coffee. In all Greater Hotels for luncheon. In the magnificent Sherbrook of Chicago. In countless country homes which enjoy fine hospitality.

The blend combines the four finest coffee that grow. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Each derives its excellent flavor from one of the finest soils of the earth.

There is no more combined in this blend more than ordinary. It is more than the French of Brazil. One is so rich in beans are grown yearly.

The formula for this blend is a secret, carefully preserved. Coffee served over 30 years in perfecting it. No other blend has been made to resemble it. Those who find here their ideal flavor can find it nowhere else.

Mrs. E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, says: "This is the best coffee I have ever used in this blend. It is due to its maintenance, rather than to any of its prime coffee flavor. It has very few pebbles necessary to combine in a La Touraine (Extra) the maximum delight."

La Touraine (Extra) is sold direct to you. It is sold in double strength. It is sold in single strength. It is sold in other strengths. About 11 cents per pound for the double strength. You get this matchless coffee without a fancy price.

ANDOVER HOOD FARM

IS SOLD FOR $50,000

ANDOVER HOOD FARM. Located in Andover, two miles from Lowell, overlooking the Merrimack Valley, beautifully located and owned by a famous family. The farm is a great investment opportunity.

THE REV. MISS ALMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON, who told how she was kidnapped in her bathing suit, when strangers asked her to get into an automobile and pray for a poor little sick girl, is now making a romantic fight against the public prosecutor, who wants to put her in jail for not telling the truth to justice.

WHILE SHE was a girl, posed to be drowned, managers of the great Almee Semple McPherSON Temple started a "memorial" fund for their pastor and collected $40,000. The presumption will tell the "Right the Devil" fund.

Thousands that sob, pray and sing hymns under Almee Semple McPherSON's direction, as she puts out the lights in the Temple and turns a spotlight on the American flag, with an electric light that has the nation's attention of knowledge that whatever money can do for her defense will be done.

YOU CAN imagine how humiliated the Devil must be when he peeks through the windows of the Almee Semple McPherSON Temple and sees thousands contributing to her "Right the Devil" fund.

He sought to overthrow sweetness and light, and for the result is that Almee Semple McPherSON collects more money than ever. Poor Satan! You can understand how Milton occasionally felt sorry for him.

BELLHOPS AS EDISON RAPPED BY RADIO MAN

Mr. Washington, Bretton Woods, N. H. Bell, 54-55 in the country where mountains are numerous and radio is still a new growth, has been particularly interested in the work of Gene Tunney's wireless over "The Bellhop" radio program. He has been in the habit of listening to the program on a small radio set which he has placed in his room. He has been particularly interested in the program because of the fact that it is a comedy and he has been particularly interested in the fact that it is a comedy.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Francis Bachman, president of the Broadcast Engineers' Association, in a telegram to Thomas A. Edison, said: "Radio dealers are making much more money than phonograph dealers and the public in general is entirely satisfied with the radio. Edison's attempt to monopolize the radio industry is a failure."

TUNNEY FOLKS ARE SHY AT SPOTLIGHT

New York, Sept. 24 (LNS).—Gene Tunney's relatives refuse to share the spotlight that centres about his 185 pound form (today showing his success in wrestling the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey).

His mother, Mrs. Mory Tunney, refused to see newspaper reporters at her home here. A sister, who glided the home with her, was just as evasive.

"The public isn't interested in a picture of us but him," she said. "We have no statement to make."

Pictures? No, none of the rest of the family had any desire to see his or her picture in the newspapers as a result of the Philadelphia affair.

Tunney's brother, a policeman, saw the flight.

Los Challengers Assault Monarch

Ambitious Rivals Ask Chance to Snatch Tunney's Crown

that he was considering the match and that Delaney was agreeable.

Richard also said he might stage return battle between Tunney and Delaney.

"Jack has asked for the match and it may go on next spring," Tex declared.

Gene Normale, manager of Jack Dempsey, today revealed that the champion has received all the money due him for the bout.

"Dempsey got very little that he is entitled to and there is no real trouble in New York," he said.

Delaney said in a report that the champion's money had been used to by process servers and that he might not receive any portion of it until suit is instituted by Jack Normale, his former manager, and others.

Delaney said he was in New York today.

Harry Willis has faded out of the picture.

Tunney today believed his determination not to give the new challenger a chance at the crown, while he refused to box Tunney for $125,000.

Among the dozens of aspirants for a crack at Tunney's crown are Jimmy Peters, a welter, heavy eight champion, Mike Kohn, the Chicago giant, and our own Jack Sharkey.

Johnny Throckmorton, manager of Sharkey, armed with a contract for a Tunney-Sharkey fight last spring, sought out Tex Rickard to lead for his prize.

Philadelphia will make a strong bid for Tunney's seat. The city is breaking its record by examining the deposed champion to be advanced to support the argument.

Dempsey's Heart in the Right Place--But That Was All

It was said that Dempsey had planned a return bout with Luis Firpo, the wild bull of the Argentine. Firpo's next summer in case he had won over Tunney. He expected greatly decreased this after a room as he jumped in a room at the Bellevue-Stratford before going to Atlantic City.

MURDER IN VALETS

The anticlimactic nature of today was recalled when it was said that the champion had been lured beyond his capacity in trying to find out if the fight was in. He was told by the valet that the champion had been lured by the valet to the room at the Bellevue-Stratford before going to Atlantic City.

A shortage of coffee pots also developed, due to the many orders received by housekeepers to have coffee pots in the room at the Bellevue-Stratford before going to Atlantic City.

Despite this, however, events on the Atlantic City scene were controlled to anger out service to await their guests.

Tunney Carried Battle to Champ and Beat Him at His Own Game

For the first time since he reached the pugilistic crest Dempsey was compelled to give ground. When he was told that Tunney would drive him back under a steady rain of crushing blows.

The up off on the Dempsey of today came in the very first round, the champion took the aggressive at the start as it was expected he would, weaving and bobbing, he moved to close quarters and dashed away at Tunney's body.

Gene moved back, trying to protect himself as best he could. For a minute he looked as though Dempsey was going to parade to a hollow victory. Then something happened. Tunney let drive a right hand punch as Dempsey stepped forward. The blow crashed against the former champion's jaw and he was brought up quick. He came to a halt and shook his head. The conqueror of Willard had been hurt.

Tunney was quick to follow his advantage and made a series of quick punches. He landed a left hand blow to Tunney's head and body.

Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—What a pathos it was that saw that great drama—the passing of a heavy-weight champion and the crown of a new one. The drama was an eminently fair one. Gene Tunney, the new champion, proved his worth. He was a champion. He was a champion. He was a champion.

I admired the courage of the old champion but frankly I could not give him a round. Tunney is a student and his progress is now that he has the title he will have that confidence that will make him a champion. He will have that confidence that will make him a champion. Roman Circus Piker Show

FILM STARS PLAY SECOND FIDDLE

Compared to Philly Battle

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Feature Editor.
(Copyright, 1926, by Universal Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Brawn and muscle, Roman gladiators, the odor of perspiration, delicate perfumes, expensive furs, soiled shirt sleeves, thousands of eager, peering faces, belong to every creed, color and nationality, brought together to see a heavyweight champion made. That is the kaleidoscopic impression of my first prize fight.

The imagination refuses to go further than the huge amphitheatre built to let the fight fans of the country gaze upon the ruble features of Gene Tunney and the sterner, more rugged countenance of Jack Dempsey. The main action in Ben Hur and the old scenes staged in the Maximus Circus to give the Roman emperors a treat were piker exhibitions compared with the magnitude and the color of this modern fiat battle.

ROWDY INSTINCT IN EVERYONE

I found myself cheering wildly and emotionally with the rest of the motion picture crowd. This was our battle, fought by two members of our crowd and any undue enthusiasm was pardoned. Besides the rest of the world had gone fight mad, and one just has to keep abreast of the times. Every time I rose to my feet and shouted at Gloria Swanson and Thomas Meighan who sat near me, I realized the primal soul of Adam and Eve in every man and woman. Perhaps I should call it a rowdy instinct.

Environment it appears does not make a nickel's worth of difference when two popular heroes are engaged in a combat to see which wears the laurel wreath of the championship. Stage and screen stars, shop girls, street cleaners and millionaires are all alike. This fight was an emotional orgy, and every one there did his part to see that it wasn't mismanaged.

The actual meeting of Dempsey and Tunney in the arena is, of course, the thrill that comes once in a lifetime. I would not have missed it if I had to walk half way from Hollywood. Almost as exciting was the mad dash to the Soviet grounds in time for the entrance of pugilistic film stars. Taxi, five abreast, vying with street cars and expensive limousines, defied all traffic regulations. All caution was thrown to the winds, and that the cavalry list did not resemble the Titanic disaster was due more to fate than caution.

BUTLER AND EGG MEN PRESENT

Women in jewels and smart and expensive frocks, men with cauliflower ears and loud clothes, butter and egg men from the Middle West, prosperous furniture manufacturers from Grand Rapids, and couples with silly coronas were carded on their left shoulders, were all a part of the stupendous pasadena.

Film stars of international reputation, who would have had the entire city of Philadelphia out to welcome them at any other time, were content to be a part of this pageant.

For the first time since they achieved fame, they were the background instead of the central figures around which the action of the life drama pivoted.

I know how why fights in John J. Sullivan's day were considered brutal exhibitions at which no woman who called herself a lady could be seen. It was because there were no cinema celebrities in those days to give the occasions distinction.

This particular fight is essentially a motion picture affair. Not only do the heroes belong to the movies with flapping as their sideline, but Jules Mastbaum, president of the Stanley Company of America and owner of nearly as many theatres as Marcus Loew, was the power behind the throne.

Not even Tex Rickard, himself, had any more authority than Mastbaum, who engineered the fight, and made it possible for Philadelphia to have more people within its gates than it has ever seen, or probably will ever see again.

Mastbaum brought as his personal guests A. L. Erlanger, Judge Olney, Alfred E. Smith, Jr., Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky, John McCarty, and other well-known political and motion picture folk.

I saw so many of my friends, many of whom I hadn't seen since I came East, that temptation to gossip was strong. I had to be myself to a corner and stop talking.

Thomas Meighan gave some girl in a red dress a treat when he stopped to shake hands with me.

"Oh, I am glad I came," she said, "it's Tommy Meighan, the big film star."

Close at Tommy's heels was a disreputable figure wearing a rough beard. An officer demanded he show his ticket, evidently believing some hobo had found his way past the vigilante committee of uniformed officers.

WINNING CREATES SENSATION

"He is all right," smiled Tommy. "He is with me."

At that Nathan Burkan, famous theatrical lawyer, and Oscar Shaw, the well known actor, let out a loud guffaw. The tramp was Charles Winsler, the husband of Barbara Ring, and Tommy's own brother-in-law. He is playing in "Tingo," and he added some trick clothes to his own board, hoping to create a sensation. Well, he did.

Pauline Starke, a trim little figure in a tailored suit, brought forth several audible comments of admiration from the male element. She sat near a group of well known film stars, including Richard Dix, Ricardo Cortez and David Butler.

While here and there attractive women dressed up the audience, the majority of those holding seats were men. Mrs. Benjamin Gimbal, in a stunning green dress, sat directly in front of me. Her knowledge of a fighting made me realize I have to ask Jack Dempsey or Tunney to explain some of the language. The next fight I see I hope to be able to tell a fade out from a cliché. It is so difficult not to mix movies with fights.

The handsome mayor of New York, James J. Walker, was surrounded by some of New York's influential politicians. I guess they were politicians, they all looked so prosperous. Directly back of them sat Joseph Schenck, with his brother, Nick, Constance Talmadge and her husband, Captain McAllister.

William Russell, Helen Ferguson, Mack Bennett, Patsy Ruth Miller were among the enthusiasts who did some real cheering. Morris Gest grew so excited over a particularly thrilling punch that he knelt in the dirt.

"The greatest spectacle since 'The Miracle,'" he told me. "Nowhere but in America could they put on such a show."

I should charge him advertising rates for mentioning "The Miracle."

FANNY WARD LOSES COMPLEXION

Sam Harris, Arthur Hopkins, Arthur Hammerstein and Lee Shubert sitting near me, it might look as if I were playing favorites.

Hope Hampton furnished an anti-illustration of what the well-dressed woman should wear at a prize fight by appearing in a gray costume that looked Parisian.

The new champion, Gene Tunney, seemed to regard the weather as a favorable omen. Probably he also will call purple his favorite color. He wore purple trunks.

Writing in the pouring rain is only equal to the Santa Barbara earthquake, but why should I complain when Dempsey has a black eye and lost the championship?

Coleen Moore ruined a new suit and Fannie Ward lost her famous complexion.

Jack's Famous Punch and Fighting Fire

Not in Evidence

By DAVID J. WALSH

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—"When I was my first fight on my back and thoroughly soaked on the chin."

That has been Jack Dempsey's story for years, but last night he was not fat on his back, nor was he too thoroughly soaked on the chin. But he got the heavyweight championship of the world, and he got it in a manner that was not dramatic, nor even farcical. He simply had a fight with another man, and the other man won.

The other man was a good fight. The man that everybody has been talking about for years went down to defeat without flying the colors of a good, game fighting American. He didn't have a punch.

He didn't have a chance. He hit the challenger the first time, but he didn't have the punch, and a second man fought with him to win the heavyweight title, the greatest fight competitive sport has to offer.

Gene Tunney is not a fighter. Personally, I could think of three men who could beat him today, and for all I know his winning of the heavyweight title was a fluke. It was a fluke, and it was a fluke.

It was a fluke, and it was a fluke. It was a fluke, and it was a fluke. It was a fluke, and it was a fluke. It was a fluke, and it was a fluke.

Women Shriek as Gene Hits Jack

Gene Hits Jack

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (A.P.)—Probably more women saw Gene Tunney win the world's heavyweight crown last night than ever before saw a champion topple from his throne.

Greatly outnumbered and shouted at the top of their voices. "Come on, Gene," was the favorite slogan. "Come on, Gene," was the favorite slogan.

LITTLE TAKING GENE TUNNEY'S CORNER

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (A.P.)—Few words were exchanged by Tunney and his advisers in the ring between rounds. As the challenger continued to pile up an overwhelming lead on the outside, Tunney's corner whispered after the eighth round.

"Keep away and take no chances on the last round, will you, Gene?" was the advice given by Tunney's corner.

"Don't worry," was Tunney's reply. "I've got two words left of conversation between the first and final round."

"That's all," Tunney said. "I've got two words left of conversation between the first and final round."

40 Million 'Saw' Tunney Win in 'Lip Pictures'

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (A.P.)—An anonymous audience of 40,000,000, women and children, were comfortably seated in tapestry arm chairs, some near kitchen stoves, others in the front row, and others in the back row, when the fight between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey was shown.

The fight was shown in the front row, and the fight was shown in the front row. The fight was shown in the front row, and the fight was shown in the front row.

Meditations of a Wife

By Helen Rowland
PROFESSIONAL "REALITY" is usually about ten per cent better, fifteen per cent, clothes and seventy-five per cent, advertising.

To most men, the language of love is a foreign tongue, which they can understand perfectly, but can not speak, without "getting all tangled up."

A woman seldom fully appreciates a "good husband" until he has been dead long enough for another man to court his insurance away from her.

"Home" is the place where you can have all the little comforts and inconveniences—if you can ever find them; lots of closet room; for somebody else hasn't taken all the books and the privileges of doing as you please—if your wife will let you.

Many a girl resorts to all sorts of subterfuges to steal another woman's husband, when his wife would cheerfully have handed him over if only she had known that somebody would take him off her hands.

At twenty, a girl is torn between the impulse to accept what's offered in the way of a husband and the hunch to wait until the "second crop" appears, and she can do better.

A man who is tired of his wife may escape from her—but what hope is there for a disillusioned old bachelor who is tired of HIMSELF?

No matter how cruelled a man may be at one woman's callousness,

The Difference Between Work and Industry

By LUCY LOWELL
SHE'S a hard-working woman—no question about that. She's always telling you that her house is neat as a pin—and it is; a shiny, new pin. But that's because she keeps it as such.

Housecleaning for her isn't a semi-annual affair. It's a thing that comes every Little White. She'll drag everything out and scrub and dust and scour days on end. Then she'll put things back again, changing their position about with a great deal of planning and pains.

"It's my amount of satisfaction," she'll say. "I feel exactly as if I had a new house. It pays for all the work."

Well, does it? Is she any happier, really, because she pays for a very short time as if she had a new house?

I know another woman who will spend an entire day going from shop to shop to match a bit of lace. Chappaccini a few cents a yard—but she's had a few inches of it left from something, and so she may as well use it. No sense in wasting anything—and so on.

By matching it she's saved about fifteen cents. Also she has spent time and energy beyond calculation that she might have used for something worth while.

It isn't only women who do these things. There's a man of my acquaintance whom we call Perpetual Motion because he's always on the go. Working.

"I'm an industrious fellow," he says. And he is that. So industrious that he holds two jobs. He resides in one place and another at night.

Industry—what is it? Well, it means doing things that you don't

SUFFICIENT UNTO DAY

By Lucy Lowell
It is always today.
Yesterday? A memory. The wise mind does not hang too closely to memory.

The part of it that was disappointing or unhappy or fruitful may be corrected today. For, after all, disappointment and unhappiness and joy are thoughts. And you may control your thoughts.

To mould your mind upon Yesterday would be like living by last year's calendar, putting yourself at a distance with life; never catching up.

Tomorrow. An illusion. It never comes. It's yours today. Today side by in the thought of what's to happen tomorrow, you are living in a dream.

Of course, the dream may have very real, dreams nearly always do, especially the bad ones.

"I just don't endure the thought of what's going to happen a week from Thursday. Can't get it out of my head a minute, and it's making me wretched."

Does it sound familiar? All your shivering anticipation; that good hour of today you're wasting in being miserable; the experience you're living over and over in your imagination.

How do you know a week from Thursday will overtake you? How do you know it will be the thing you dread?

Anyway, who not keep it to that one day? Spread it through the time present! Perhaps by a week from Thursday you will find what frictions you now!

Sacred to All Mexicans

The Legend of Mount Tepeyac

The Mexican Chapel of Miracles.

These two pictures—the chapel on Mount Tepeyac and the picture of the Virgin Mary, which the legend says was miraculously painted on the blanket of an Indian shepherd by the Virgin herself—are objects of deepest veneration to millions of Mexicans. And every year from all over Mexico thousands make their pilgrimage to the shrine and worship before the Virgin's portrait.

These two pictures represent part of the treasure of Mexico's Catholic Church. It is easy to understand that Mexican Catholics, learning that their treasure ought to be made public property, are agitated and that the problem is a grave one.

The legend of the chapel and of the miraculous portrait of the Virgin is told as follows:

Miraculous portrait of the Virgin to which Mexicans make yearly pilgrimages.

gin is said to have appeared to Juan Diego, an Indian shepherd, and bade him to build a chapel for her on the hill above.

"The Bishop, being incredulous, desired that some tangible token of the vision should be brought to him. The shepherd then returned to the hill, and saw the Virgin; a bush filled with roses sprang from the rocks at her feet, and Diego found, on unrolling his blanket, at the Virgin's request, a portrait of her on it and an armful of roses.

"The Bishop, with these proofs, now believed the shepherd's story and the result was the erection of the sacred edifice."

Many, in these days of incredulity, will question the historical accuracy of this legend, but that does not interfere with the belief of millions that see in the old portrait of the Virgin the work of her own hands.

It is this faith in the miracles and legends of old that makes it so hard for the devout people of Mexico to endure the thought that the ancient cathedrals, churches and chapels, built by the Catholic church, are no longer to be the property of the church, but to be under the control of public officials and periodical elections.

It is not for us to dictate or suggest to other nations how they shall live, what they shall do, or what laws they shall make, but rather to sympathize with all beliefs, all plans, mind our own business and attend to our own duties.

Room for Debate

The Island of Mindanao, in the Philippines—as big as Indiana—contains, we are told:

- Valuable undeveloped waterpower;
- Inexhaustible coal seams;
- Half a billion tons of iron ore;
- Much gold and asbestos;
- Capacity to grow a third of our rubber supply;
- Superior tropical fruits;
- Coffee possibilities comparable with those of Brazil; and
- Great chances for hemp growers.

It could sustain millions of inhabitants in comfort, but has only a small number, mostly poor.

Would it injure civilization to speed the development of so much latent wealth?

Fortune's Batting Average

From Chicago come two strange stories. On a State highway south of the city two automobiles were wrecked on a turn.

By a miracle both drivers escaped injury. Then one of the men, who had missed death by a hair's breadth, went to the wreckage canal nearby, jumped in and drowned himself.

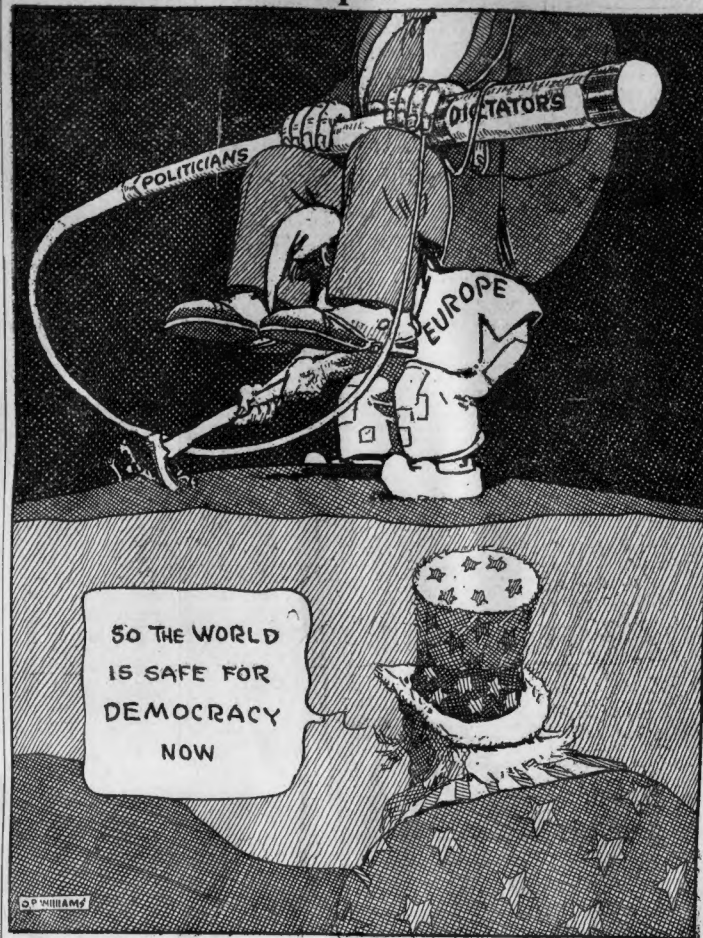

Another man, forty years old, jumped into the lake only to be fished out by the crew of a tugboat.

They tried him out and sent him home. There he hanged himself to a gas fixture. This time he died.

Fortune favors fools, but it can't be counted on for a hundred per cent performance.

Not What He Hoped For

By O. P. Williams

THE war-time slogan, "Make the world safe for democracy," undoubtedly espoused popular aspiration in this country. Our people really thought it would be worth a war to do that.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

POOR Edna was just wandering in and out of my office.

She makes you think of a ghost—does Edna—with her empty eyes, restless motions, her twisted smile. A poor, hungry ghost drifting down life's darkening streets, eating wistfully at the lighted windows of happier folk.

What dreadful thing has brought Edna to this pass? Is she old, poor, crippled, sick? Has she had devastating sorrows or crushing shock? What dreadful thing has brought Edna to this pass?

Not at all. Edna is a healthy, intelligent woman of thirty-nine, with a good education, a steady job, loving relatives and as many friends as she desires. She is well-dressed and wears them well. Her face would be handsome if it were not so embittered by her inner turmoil.

But what's the hidden mystery? Simply this—EDNA NEVER TOOK A CHANCE AND NOW SHE'S PAYING FOR IT. Twenty years ago Edna was a lovely youngster on the brink of a marriage. The years ahead were like a miniature Eden. Edna, waiting the land of Heart's Desire, waited in that land, for Edna's husband, a man, babies, adventures rode upon his angelic arms, with towering masts and great, full sails, a ship of a different kind, a home, all that might make life full and colorful for heart and brain.

There it was all waiting for Edna. It was all waiting for Edna. It was all waiting for Edna. It was all waiting for Edna.

Afraid of Chance

Edna never came because she was afraid to take a chance. Always there seemed a risk involved. For instance, there was that boy she fell in love with when she was twenty-one. A nice boy, but she didn't like a nickel. She really wanted to marry him, but she got so thinking it over. He was so different to take up a second of her time. It was all waiting for Edna. It was all waiting for Edna. It was all waiting for Edna.

A poor farmer's wife.

She loved him—how she loved him! But somehow she just could not bear to go. So she stayed with the folks and the nice comfortable home. Today the boy can ride for miles over his rich, tiled fields and beside him ride three handsome sons. But they are not Edna's fields—nor Edna's sons.

There was that wonderful chance to go abroad as a companion for old Mrs. Roberts. She'd have been the world—all its quintessence and beauty, all its grandeur and might. But old Mrs. Roberts was cross and unreasoning. And Edna was "high strung." So she thought she'd wait for a more agreeable opportunity. But it never came.

Opportunity Lost

And there was that splendid offer of a position in the Wilcox chain of stores. It would have amounted to a big career in time—she would have been a traveling saleswoman in three States. But it meant dreadfully hard work at first. Giving up her parties and dressing on almost no pay for a while. And, of course, there was always the chance that she would get a better offer. She wanted something more certain—but somehow it never came.

And so the years went on. Plenty of opportunities but always the windows where children play, the children of women who were willing to take a chance—the windows where men and women sit in love, which never comes have to be willing to run a risk.

Nothing much new about this story, is there? No, nothing new. But it is by chance happenings that we live our lives.

And so today she drifts like a hungry ghost down the highway streets and gazes bitterly at the lighted windows of happier folk—two windows where children play, the children of women who were willing to take a chance—the windows where men and women sit in love, which never comes have to be willing to run a risk.

What Will Be Next Race?

By Garrett P. Servis

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WHAT will be the next great race to possess the earth? I am not speaking of human races but of animal kinds in general, and also I am not using the word "race" in accordance with biological classification, but simply as a convenient substitute for "class."

Among the animals no win exists, the leading grand division is that of the vertebrates, or bony-skinned animals, of which there are five classes: man, fishes, reptiles, birds and mammals. The mammals, animals which produce living young and nourish them after birth with milk from their breasts (unmilked), stand at the head of the list, with man from their side, and we humans constitute the last race in the family.

No less an authority than Professor Osborn lately discussed the question of the "Age of Man." We know that there was an "Age of Reptiles," which ended millions of years ago by the disappearance of its mightiest representatives (though many smaller species of reptiles continue to exist in these, for them, as concrete days, and there is nothing disturbing for us in that fact.

It is with something like a shock that we learn that our own age, that is, the age of the class to which we belong, is also declining to its close.

This seems to naughty men, who treasure legends of his race having been chosen to rule the whole terrestrial life, to be a rude mark of disrespect to the part of nature. Imagine the class which is honored with man's membership, degraded from its high station, to make place, it may be, for some other animal form, whose conduct story as yet gives no preliminary signs. Of course, the meaning of the analogy of the mammals as a class need not be the meaning of man's head of that class; yet there is a kind of disrespect to the race which the process and we know, from the study of extinct animals, that the race which cannot be fitted into the existing classes.

Election Fraud Made Easy

Handwriting Expert Describes a Nomination-Paper "Factory"

As one of the results of the recent primary—and perhaps of other primaries before it—the Legislature of 1927 will be asked to so amend the election law that responsibility for the genuineness of signatures to nomination papers shall be fixed DIRECTLY UPON THE CANDIDATE.

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook is prepared to suggest a prison penalty, in the case of demonstrated fraud, and if the "business" of forging signatures has reached anywhere near the proportions suggested by the testimony of William E. Kingston, handwriting expert, there will be few honest men to object.

Looking over one of the papers filed not long since on behalf of a certain candidate, we are told, Mr. Kingston declared, that the names were written in by eight persons, seated around the same table.

"In front of them," says the expert, "are voting lists, with every eighth name checked off as the name to be written in by one of the signers. After the name is written, the sheet is passed along and gradually makes the circuit of the table and comes back to the first signer."

"By following the sheets carefully, anyone can see that every eighth signature is in the same handwriting. As the process continues, it will be observed that suddenly the same handwriting appears on every SEVENTH signature. One of the signers has gone to get a drink of water! Later, when noon approaches, the same writing may appear more frequently, say once in every FOUR signatures, indicating that the signers are going to lunch in shifts."

Cannot the election officials detect such bare-faced fraud? Mr. John J. O'Brien may say. They can and they do, but their hands are tied. When names are filed for "certification," the ONLY question before the officers is whether each name is the name of a registered voter; the HONESTY of the signature is not in question.

From all of which we draw the conclusion that more than one "joke" candidacy could have been traced to a "nomination-paper factory," and we are inclined to the belief that Secretary of State Cook is justified in asking that the law be given a full set of sharp teeth.

Radio Language

English Has Best Chances

David Barnoff, vice-president of the Radio Corporation of America, prophesies that a new universal language for scientific and commercial purposes will be brought about by radio.

In the Middle Ages, Latin was the universal language of scholars.

In the twentieth century all scientists and scholars must know German and French, whatever their native tongue.

The future auxiliary language will be largely decided by radio.

World-wide broadcasting may result in the adoption of a universal language or the acceptance of a language of the country giving the most programs and having the most powerful broadcasting stations.

In the latter case, the English language appears to have the best chance of being accepted.

FASCIST CONTROL HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FOR all who may against Mussolini and his methods, he has wrought a great change in Italy.

He has restored to the country a faith in its own power which has not existed since the Roman Empire fell.

One of the things that the traveler notices first of all is the punctuality of the Italian train service, when in pre-war days the long-distance express was frequently as much as one hour late. In 1921 and 1922 the government concessions had surrendered the control of the Italian railroads to the railway men. The result was a confusion that was comic. Engineers would leave their trains at way stations because they had completed their eight-hour day. Sometimes the train crew would refuse to allow the train to start at all because a policeman was aboard.

There were notorious thefts of baggage on the Italian railroads. Some twenty million dollars were paid out for stolen baggage while the roads were under the control of the Bolsheviks, but since the war not over eight hundred thousand dollars has been paid.

Mussolini refused to listen to the complaints of the men until the service was running with absolute regularity. And the men are more satisfied now with their lot than when they were controlled by the local Soviets.

One hundred and fifty million dollars of public works are under construction at the present time, supported by the State.

Irrigation and reclamation are being vigorously pushed forward.

"It has been far cheaper and just as effective," says Mussolini, "as a foreign war in the conquest of a new province."

Malaria has been subdued and school children organized into mosquito squads to cover with oil the waters where the mosquitoes breed.

Many more public improvements have been inaugurated, including harbor development, and all this while the government was fighting opposition at home and uncomprehending onlookers from abroad.

Altogether a nation of forty million people has been pulled together, given self-respect, made solvent, and generally improved.
